DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The following guidelines illustrate the preferred layout for the specification of a utility application. These guidelines are suggested for the applicant's use.

Arrangement of the Specification

As provided in 37 CFR 1.77(b), the specification of a utility application should include the following sections in order. Each of the lettered items should appear in upper case, without underlining or bold type, as a section heading. If no text follows the section heading, the phrase "Not Applicable" should follow the section heading:

- (a) TITLE OF THE INVENTION.
- (b) CROSS-REFERENCE TO RELATED APPLICATIONS.
- (c) STATEMENT REGARDING FEDERALLY SPONSORED RESEARCH OR DEVELOPMENT.
- (d) THE NAMES OF THE PARTIES TO A JOINT RESEARCH AGREEMENT.
- (e) INCORPORATION-BY-REFERENCE OF MATERIAL SUBMITTED ON A COMPACT DISC.
- (f) BACKGROUND OF THE INVENTION.
 - (1) Field of the Invention.
 - (2) Description of Related Art including information disclosed under 37 CFR 1.97 and 1.98.
- (g) BRIEF SUMMARY OF THE INVENTION.
- (h) BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE SEVERAL VIEWS OF THE DRAWING(S).
- (i) DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF THE INVENTION.
- (j) CLAIM OR CLAIMS (commencing on a separate sheet).
- (k) ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE (commencing on a separate sheet).
- (l) SEQUENCE LISTING (See MPEP § 2424 and 37 CFR 1.821-1.825. A "Sequence Listing" is required on paper if the application discloses a nucleotide or amino acid sequence as defined in 37 CFR 1.821(a) and if the required "Sequence Listing" is not submitted as an electronic document on compact disc).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The claims are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform with current U.S. practice. They appear to be a literal translation into English from a foreign document and are replete with grammatical and idiomatic errors.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

6. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gatellier (FR 2 613 232).

Regarding claim 1, Gatellier discloses a nasal stimulator which consists of two cylinders 5 joined by a curved tongue 6. Gatellier discloses that the cylinders can be made of plastic or an elastomer (p. 1, lines 20-26) but fails to specifically mention silicone. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have made all or part of the cylinders from silicone, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416. Furthermore, silicone is an old and well-known material in the art for similar devices. Gatellier fails to specifically disclose that the two-cylinder embodiment has a rim on a lower part but does disclose a single cylinder with a rim 3 that keeps the cylinder from being inserted into the nostril deeper than it should (p. 3, lines 5-9). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have provided the rim on the two-cylinder embodiment in order to keep the cylinders from being inserted into the nostril deeper than they should. The rims would then have protruding supports or tabs 7/8. The single cylinder embodiment comprises a widening 3 in the central part of its external surface in order to prevent accidental extraction from the nose (p. 3, lines 10-13). The widening covers the whole periphery except in the small part (the part above 3) that faces and is capable of coming into contact with the nasal septum during use and which is capable of producing a touch or grazing on the internal wall of the nose that stimulates the levator muscle of the alar of the nose. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have provided this widening on the two-cylinder embodiment in order to prevent accidental extraction of the cylinders from the nose. The mentioned support or protruding tabs 7/8 are capable of causing a touch or grazing on the external wall of the nose that stimulates the levator muscle of the alar of the nose. Therefore both morphological characteristics of the nasal stimulator are capable of producing a grazing on the nose alar and, as a consequence, can stimulate the levator muscle of the nose.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
